There are over 8,000 Kiwanis clubs worldwide. The individual clubs make up the organization called "Kiwanis International." The KI office supports the Kiwanis clubs around the world. The Kiwanis International Foundation funds a number of major initiatives in developing countries.

Kiwanis International and UNICEF joined forces to tackle iodine deficiency disorders, achieving one of the most significant public health successes of the 20th century. Now, they are eliminating maternal and neonatal tetanus by providing medical services to the poorest, most neglected mothers and babies in the world.

The Kiwanis Mission Statement

"Kiwanis is a global organization of volunteers dedicated to changing the world one child and one community at a time."

Membership Requirements

Potential members are encouraged to attend some meetings on a "no obligation" basis prior to submitting a membership application.

All new members must produce a National Police Certificate and are required to hold a "Working With Children" card if they wish to be involved in projects at which children may be present.

All members are governed by the Kiwanis Australia "Child Protection Policy and Code of Conduct" which ensures that the highest standards of integrity are maintained at all times.

New members pay a small "one off" joining fee. All members pay annual dues of around $130.

There is no minimum time commitment involved in being a Kiwanian. The club is involved in a number of diverse service projects and social functions each year and members are encouraged to contribute their talents wherever and whenever they can.
